

Woodhaven Swamp and Sasamat Lake hike

March 20, 2022 – Rimka Laman

The forecast was for rain starting at noon and it was dry when we were waiting in the parking lot so ... the odds were good, right? Unfortunately, the weather gods thought differently. First we few drops, then a bit more. Oh well, you get the drift. By the time the eight of us had gone around Woodhaven Swamp it got a bit wetter. When we reached the concrete bridge at Sasamat Lake it really started to come down. A few umbrellas appeared, some ponchos and other raingear. We had some snacks or even lunch before 11 o'clock and sheltered under the overhang of the concession booth and washrooms. Of we went again to hike around the remaining part of the lake and to return to our cars. Still a nice hike on this wet day!