

Dog Mountain and Suicide Bluffs – July 28, 2019

Rimka Laman

On a sunny Sunday 11 BOCers went hiking at Mt Seymour. First they tackled Dog Mountain. What a mess that trail is! The first 100m was nicely fixed 2 years ago, but the rest!?! It's getting more eroded and, as there was rain a few days ago, huge mud puddles everywhere. But the bluffs were fantastic as the weather was quite clear. Suicide Bluffs is still a great trail with no mud whatsoever and beautiful views of the mountains with a couple bluffs thrown in. We also had to pull ourselves up on ropes at two places for additional excitement. The ripening blueberries came in very handy (and tasty) when we had to wait at times. We decided to go to a coffee place after our hike for some well-deserved drinks and treats. Thanks to our drivers Monisha & Gerard for getting us there and back.
