

Eleven people gathered at Cameron Recreation Centre, all having managed to arrive on time despite the change to Daylight Savings.

This counter-clockwise route around the mountain was formulated by long-term member David Cater. We proceeded up Stoney Creek, reached the aptly-named Jim's Jungle, headed up the Powerline trail and traversed west to Centennial Pavilion. Here we saw great views of Burrard Inlet and Indian Arm, then took a welcome break for lunch. After turning south through Gnome's Home path and southeast via some suburban trails, we completed this 13 km circular route. It was an excellent and enjoyable late winter day.

Jim McCavour

Photos by Jim, and
Thanks also to Laura and Jupiter for their photos.