to me, Riemke

Mosquito Creek has its source high in the area just east of Grouse Mountain peak, and flows southward until it reaches Burrard Inlet west of Lonsdale Quay.

At Fell & 17th St., we began ascending the wide path beside the rushing water and passed underneath the large Highway 1 overpass bridge. Beyond Mount Royal Boulevard the route became more difficult, with a steep rope-assisted area. This led to the intersection with the Baden-Powell trail, and the Mt. Fromme trail system.

Here the group headed back, had a relaxing lunch break, and proceeded to nearby Mahon Creek with its much smaller ravine.

A great day with no rain!

Thanks to Gerard and Jacques for driving, and to Gerard for his fine photos.
